sleep get!

Do not leave home!!

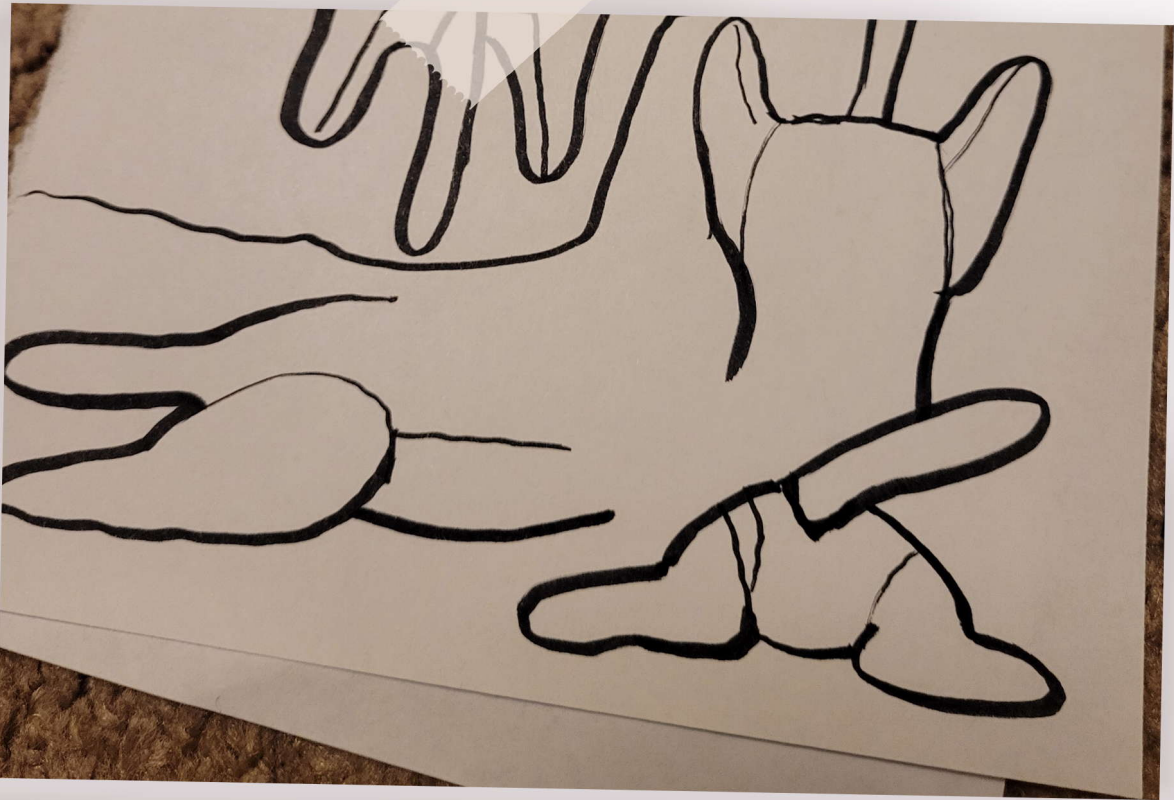

There are many stories I could tell about the creation of this plushie.

The needle and thread I used coming from my first furry convention, the initial idea coming from a plush-toy kit I'd bought from another, the constant trial and error caused by my stubborn refusal to sit through a tutorial video, the injuries I sustained due to inexperience... I could dedicate several pages simply to this.

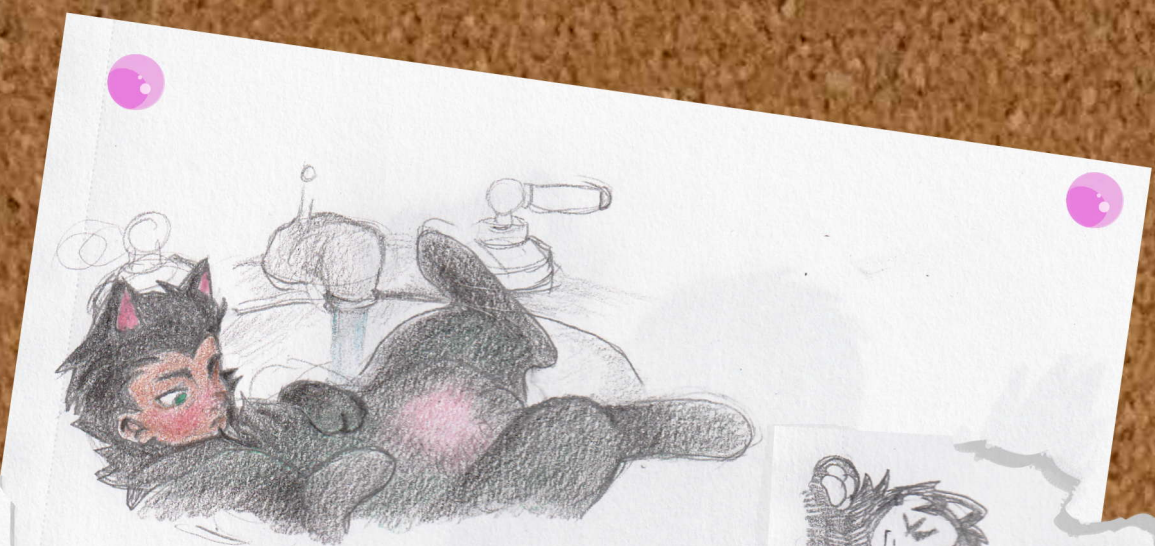

The TL;DR is: I learned to make him simply by brute-forcing my way through. I would make him differently next time, and every other time after that. He is a product of curiosity, passion and love more than any skill I started this project with- though this experience will be carried into my future art and I adore him.

Long-ways... I am FAR from an adept writer, and trying to tie all of this together neatly with my words would bore us both. The visual experience will have to suffice.
Enjoy Damian's baby pictures.
